Market Update

Human Capital

Management Services

Q3 2020

Market Insights

Despite September showing a slowing of momentum in the labor market recovery, the economy has done better than many forecasters expected in the spring. Regaining just over half of the more than 22 million jobs lost in March and April, the unemployment rate has fallen sharply to nearly 8% since it reached a record high of nearly 15% percent in April.

With this as context, many companies in the human capital services space experienced a slowdown of the pace of recovery in revenue, earnings and stock price appreciation. To some degree, the reductions in overall headcount at clients is offset by clients' movement toward the outsourcing of human resources (HR) functions, additional use of contingent resources for flexibility and additional utilization of expert advisory services and software to address changing approaches to workforce management, workforce engagement and the use of data, analytics and artificial intelligence (AI) in order respond to the COVID-disrupted environment.

As a result, three of five indices followed in the market update were up on quarter-to-quarter basis, but on balance, only the HR technology group has outperformed the S&P 500 (38.9% vs. 14.4%) on a last 12 months basis and only three to five indices are above the level of a year ago.

With an accelerating need to evolve business models to address the changing environment, we continue to see companies in the space purse mergers and acquisitions (M&A) to gain additional capabilities, access new markets and consolidate market shares. With 27 transactions in the third quarter, M&A volume was down slightly from the 30 transactions completed in the prior quarter and significantly down from the 41 announced transactions in Q3 2019.

Highlights

HR technology is up 38.7% year-over-year and outperformed the S&P 500 in Q2 and Q3 2020 to surpass the year highs previously set in Q1 prior to the COVIDinduced economic downturn. The four other human capital management subsectors continue recover at a more modest pace, though below the rest of the market.

Values for companies in the HR outsourcing and staffing services, despite notching increases quarter-overquarter, remain below their year ago levels as they continue track with employment levels within the economy.

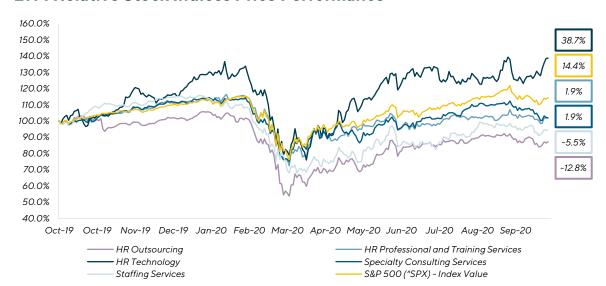

HR professional and training services and specialty consulting services were closely tracking the market recovery through Q2, but both subsectors have since slowed in their rebound from Q2 2020 levels.

Valuation multiples for each of the groups continue to recover and are at or near their highest levels since the onset of the pandemic. Multiples, however, remain materially below where they stood at the end of 2019. The current multiple discount ranges from 25.5% for the specialty consulting services group to 40% for the staffing services group. Lower multiples for the public comps have not hindered the rebound in M&A transaction volume among healthy companies in the space.

In September, NES Global Talent acquired Firecroft, a portfolio company of Equistone, creating the largest engineering staffing firm in the world. This combination of two of the largest players in the space comes at a time when engineering staffing is forecasted to be down 15% in 2020.

Firecroft operates in the oil and gas. chemicals, information and communications technology (ICT), energy, renewables, mining, automotive and construction sectors. Presumably, the combined entity, NES Firecroft, will realize a broader geographic reach and cost synergies, driving greater combined profitability.

Market Intelligence

09/04/2020: At the lowest levels since the Great Recession, staffing agencies reported employing only an average 2.1 million temporary and contract workers per week during Q2 2020 - down 33.6%. Despite record low-levels in Q2, 88% of staffing agencies expected Q3 revenue to "improve sequentially with a year-to-year decrease of 12% for the quarter". Gradual improvements in demand were reported for the first two months of Q3 with the trend expected to continue through the end of 2020. Second wave related shutdowns remain the foremost threat to recovery from drastic year-over-year declines.

American Staffing Association

09/10/2020: With the COVID-19 pandemic bringing an abrupt end to a decade of sustained growth in the United States staffing industry, SIA projects a 17% overall decline in revenue for the year. Despite the noteworthy overall decline in industry revenues, trends vary greatly depending on occupational segment and sector. In the SIA forecast, professional segments fare better than commercial with a 10% forecasted decline versus a 20% decline in the commercial segment; while temporary staffing overall fares better than place and search, declining 14% versus 33%. However, two segments of the United States staffing industry

- travel nurse and life sciences - are forecasted to grow at 10% and 3%, respectively. US Staffing Industry Forecast - September 2020 Update

09/15/2020: In 2019, the global human capital management sector in was $16.24 billion and is expected to grow at a compound annual growth rate of 9.3% by 2027. More companies are apt to invest in workforce management solutions to drive efficiency and effectiveness with the advent of predictive and in-cloud HCM technologies. Intelligent workforce solutions are expected to contribute significant drive to HCM market growth but the market's upward trajectory has been decreased by the dramatic spikes in unemployment globally from the pandemic - the United States Congressional Budget Office estimates that in the United States alone 15% of people were likely to be unemployed by the end of Q3 2020. COVID-19's impact continues to restrict the overall market growth for HCM. Policy decisions and varying state regulations will ultimately further dampen sector growth or allow for a faster rebound to the previously expected growth rate of the market.
